BLACKHAWK

A NOTHER DIRECT HIT
ON INJUSTICE!
 Oppression still stalks over land and sea, yet
 But over land and sea speed
 the BLACKHAWKS, greatest fighting team of all history... to meet, fight and destroy every threat to peace, democracy and humanity!

LET'S NOT WASTE TIME...WE'LL TAKE OFF AT ONCE!

HA! FLY TO YOUR DOOM, YOU FOOLS!

IF THE BLACKHAWKS ARE GETTING INTO THIS AFFAIR, IT'S SERIOUS, BUT NOT FATAL! WE'LL HANDLE THEM WHEN WE TAKE OVER, BALULU!

TWILIGHT REPORTING, CAPTAIN! YES, JUST AS I SAY...THE BLACKHAWKS ARE HEADING FOR BALULU! WE'D BETTER STRIKE EARLIER THAN PLANNED! I'LL FOLLOW THEM!

Meanwhile...

STRANGERS GRABBING A SMALL ISLAND--STRATEGICALLY LOCATED! THAT SOUNDS LIKE THE WORK OF A CERTAIN POWER WE KNOW, HJ, GENTLEMEN?

CORRECT, BLACKHAWK! WE OUGHT TO BE AT BALULU TWO HOURS AFTER DAWN!

But as dawn breaks over the Island of Belulu...

YOU KNOW YOUR ASSIGNMENTS, MEN! SEPARATE AND CARRY THEM OUT! IF YOU HAVE TO SHOOT ANY ISLANDERS--THE FEWER TROUBLES WE'LL HAVE LATER!

At the one radio station on the island...

WHO-- AHHH!

BULL'S-EYE! NOW BALULU HAS NO COMMUNICATIONS WITH THE OUTSIDE WORLD!

YOU'RE UNDER ARREST!

ARE YOU CRAZY? WE'RE THE BLACKHAWKS --- WE'VE COME TO PROTECT BALULU FROM THE PLOT OF THOSE STRANGERS!

THAT'S WHY WE ARREST YOU! WE'RE THE STRANGERS, YOU SEE --- WE'VE JUST TAKEN OVER HERE!

HE SPEAKS TRUTH, BLACKHAWK! THESE AREN'T THE REGULAR AIRFIELD WORKERS!

I DEMAND TO SEE YOUR LEADER, IF RATS LIKE YOU HAVE A LEADER! AT ONCE!

NATURALLY, BLACKHAWK! HERE, IF I'M NOT MISTAKEN, COMES OUR LEADER --- LANDING JUST BEHIND YOUR PLANES!

HAS EVERYTHING BEEN ARRANGED?

PERFECTLY, EXCELLENCY! TWILIGHT! BALULU IS OURS --- ALSO THE BLACKHAWKS, WHO FLEW INTO OUR TRAP LIKE SO MANY STUPID BUTTERFLIES!

DO YOU COMMAND THESE INTERNATIONAL PIRATES? THEN I ---

SILENCE, INVADER! BY YOUR OWN WORDS YOU THREATEN THE NEW GOVERNMENT OF BALULU!

FOR THAT CRIME YOUR LIVES ARE FORFEIT! LOCK THEM UP AT ONCE! ONE OF MY FIRST OFFICIAL ACTS WILL BE TO HAVE THEM EXECUTED!

At government headquarters --

YOLA TARN, YOU BROUGHT THESE STRANGERS TO CREATE A RIOT ON BALULU! YOUR PUNISHMENT SHALL BE OF SPECIAL SEVERITY!

EXCELLENCY! YOUR PARON, BUT I MUST INTERRUPT! AN EMERGENCY!

THERE'S BEEN AN UPRISING AT THE PRISON! THE PRISONERS HAVE OVERPOWERED THE INNER GUARD!

CONCENTRATE OUR FORCES THERE! SURROUND THE PRISON AND FIRE ON ALL WHO SEEK TO COME OUT!

OPEN FIRE! SHOOT AT ANY HEAD THAT SHOWS AT A DOOR OR WINDOW!

AND A BONUS TO THE FIRST TO SCORE A DEATH AMONG THE ENEMY!

LOOK OUT, SIR! THEY'RE COVERING THAT DOOR WITH RIFLES!

COURAGE, MES AMIS! TAKE ZE WEAPONS, FIRE BACK AT ZEM FROM ZE WINDOWS!

CURSE THE DOGS! THEIR AIM IS TOO GOOD! WE CAN'T RECAPTURE THE PRISON THIS WAY!

YOUR MEMORY IS SHORT! REMEMBER WHAT OTHER WEAPON WE SMUGGLED HERE IN CASE OF NEED --

--AND THE NEED HAS COME! WE'LL USE IT! COME WITH ME, YOU--AND YOU AND YOU--

AT YOUR ORDERS, EXCELLENCY TWILIGHT!

HERE...THE STUPID ISLANDERS NEVER SUSPECTED WHAT THESE CRATES CONTAINED!

QUICK! BRING OUT THE REST OF THE GUN AND FIT IT TOGETHER!

EVERY MINUTE COUNTS! THIS GUN WILL BLAST A WAY FOR US INTO THAT PRISON--NOT AN ENEMY SHALL ESCAPE!

Meanwhile--

WE'LL TURN ALL THE RIFLES OVER TO THE POLICE, WHO CAN HOLD THIS POSITION! MY BLACKHAWKS WILL FIND A WAY OUT AND ATTACK FROM THE REAR!

FIND A WAY OUT...THROUGH THAT STORM OF BULLETS! IMPOSSIBLE!

WE WON'T TRY TO GO THROUGH THE BULLETS! WE'LL GO UNDER THEM! SEE, HERE'S A WAY BELOW!

BUT IT'S AN UNDERGROUND STREAM THAT FLOWS INTO THE OCEAN!

WAIT! DON'T--

BLACKHAWK ALWAYS DOES WHAT HE SAYS HE WILL! AND WHERE HE LEADS, WE FOLLOW! COME ON, MEN, DIVE IN!

One by one, the Blackhaws are carried swiftly through the dark waters, and then--

WE'RE IN THE OPEN! COME ON TO SHORE, ALL OF YOU!

TEST FLIGHT

BLACKHAWK and Chuck walked briskly from Army Operations to the huge four-engine transport parked on the concrete apron, in the shadow of the hangar.

"This is a break," Chuck said enthusiastically, "the Air Command asking us to run the night tests on the X-RC-37. Of course," he added, "you've done so much work on it it's practically your ship, Blackhawk."

"We've all had a hand in the planning," Blackhawk said quietly. "The main thing is that it's about ready for production if all goes well tonight. This ship is the answer to the Air Force's supply problem."

The two blue-clad figures ducked under the silver fuselage and into the open rear-loading hatch. Blackhawk gained the catwalk first and went forward, switching on the cabin lights. He heard Chuck's footsteps clanging on the metal walk. Suddenly they stopped.

"Chuck," Blackhawk called, "anything wrong?"

A soft, menacing voice spoke close to his ear: "I doubt if your friend can hear you. My companion Boris has done his job well."

Blackhawk turned and looked into the blue muzzle of an automatic. A thin, gaunt man, wearing a twisted smile, stepped from the radio compartment. "I suggest you get on with your test flight, Blackhawk," the gunman said. "In the absence of your friend, I am quite competent to act as co-pilot and radioman."

Blackhawk faced the thin man, saying with quiet determination, "This ship won't move until I know how Chuck is."

"Your friend will be unconscious for a short time," the man said, smiling mirthlessly. "However, I cannot guarantee that condition for long unless you are more cooperative."

Blackhawk evaluated the situation swiftly. He could possibly disarm this intruder, but at the risk of harm to Chuck. "All right," he agreed bleakly, "I'll start the test."

The blue-uniformed leader of the Blackhawks took his cockpit seat on the left while the other slid warily into the one on the right, still keeping his pistol pointed unwaveringly.

"You know you can't get far," Blackhawk warned. "This ship has only two hours fuel supply."

"Let me worry about that," the man answered. "It won't take an hour to get where we will land. There I have made the necessary arrangements with my subordinates to refuel this transport for a long flight."

"Don't try to stall for time," he continued. "I am also a pilot. If necessary, I can fly this ship myself . . . now get started," he ordered brusquely.

With practiced skill, Blackhawk flipped switches that started motors whining deep within the great ship. The four jet engines coughed softly, one by one, building up to a hissing roar. Then he released the parking brakes and taxied to the end of the runway while his captor made radio contact with the tower for takeoff instructions.

Rushing the throttles full forward, Blackhawk headed the plane straight down the runway. The tremendous acceleration shoved them back against the cushioned seats but, after a short run, the ship lifted gently into the air.

"Head due west," the man ordered, "and keep your altitude low in case your friends at the field suspect something and decide to track us by radar."

The rear cockpit door opened and a heavy, thick-set man entered the flight deck. "Everything is satisfactory aft, Serge," he chuckled. "These fools will never learn how easy it is to slip into their most heavily guarded areas. Shall we dump them overboard now?"

"No, Boris," Serge answered. "I believe I will take them with us. They can give us valuable information on the production of this latest transport. You know we have little data on it other than that which we will obtain on this flight. Also it will be a clever touch to bring in the invisible Blackhawk as a prisoner."

"You won't get anything from us," Blackhawk promised grimly, "except trouble . . . plenty of that."

"We'll see," Serge sneered. "You'd be surprised what the proper persuasion can do for a person's 'singing voice.'"

More than half an hour had elapsed and now the ship skimmed over the flat wastelands of the Southwest. Straight ahead a row of lights sparkled brightly on the ground.

"I'll take over from here," Serge ordered. "Boris," he said, turning to his companion in the passageway, "take Blackhawk back to join his friend, just to make sure he doesn't try to crash this valuable piece of government property."

At this moment Blackhawk stared intently at the instrument panel, then reached forward and flipped several toggle switches.

"What are you doing?" Serge asked suspiciously.

"Fuel pressure's low," Blackhawk explained. "Let's go, Boris," he said, unfastening his safety belt and rising from his seat. "Your pal wants to practice his flying."

Blackhawk, under Boris' watchful eyes and menacing gun, went aft to the dimly lighted cargo compartment. But, halfway to the tail section, the famous crime-fighter stopped suddenly, Boris bumping into him before he could arrest his own movement.

Blackhawk spun swiftly, grabbing the agent's gun-hand and at the same time hooking a solid blow to his head. Boris fell heavily to one knee and Blackhawk followed up his advantage with a sharp uppercut which stretched the big man full-length on the metal floor.

"Nice going, Blackhawk," a guarded voice called.

Blackhawk pocketed the pistol he had taken from Boris and made his way to the huddled form at the rear of the compartment. "Chuck," he said, slipping off the ropes that bound his friend. "I was afraid you were hurt."

"It would take more than one little love tap to bother my thick skull," Chuck said with a grin. "Let's take care of that cookie up front." He climbed to his feet and started forward resolutely.

"We haven't time," Blackhawk cautioned, placing a restraining hand on his radio-man's arm. "I'll get our chutes. We're going after the rest of the gang on the ground before they're tipped off and scatter."

"I'm game," Chuck answered, "but what about this ship?"

"I signalled the base by pretending to switch on the fuel pumps," Blackhawk explained quickly, "and the five minutes before they take over are almost up."

"O.K.," Chuck agreed, "it's over the side for us."

Blackhawk opened the rear escape hatch and, after snapping on his parachute, he leaped into the slipstream of the plane. Chuck followed almost immediately.

The two chutes had barely opened when the two men hit the ground within a hundred yards of each other. Quickly Blackhawk cast off the harness and made his way toward the row of lights on the ground. He soon caught up with Chuck, who had landed some distance nearer the lights.

They both looked up to watch as the plane they had just left wheeled and turned back in the direction from which it had come. Then they walked on toward the signal lights. A few minutes later they stopped at the sound of voices coming from the general vicinity of two parked trucks.

"I wonder if that was the ship!" the first voice queried. "If it was, I'd say maybe Serge doesn't intend to stop here for this jet fuel."

"He'll be here," the second voice assured him. "He has already contacted Karl in the radio truck. If that transport is as fast as reported they'll be landing any minute now."

Blackhawk moved silently to one side of the smaller truck while Chuck covered the other side. Suddenly, preceded by a spurt of orange flame and a loud report, a bullet spanged against the metal side of the truck near Blackhawk's head. In one motion he whirled, drew his own pistol from his belt and shot from a crouch. A groan told him he had not missed.

Two men piled out on either side of the truck cab. As Blackhawk moved to intercept his quarry, the man kicked out, lancing his blow from the running board. Blackhawk, caught in the chest, was thrown to the ground. But he was up on his feet in a split-second, fighting for possession of a gun which the man had drawn.

Acting with dispatch, Blackhawk slammed the man against the truck body, then planted a crushing blow to his jaw. The man slid limply to the ground.

Blackhawk circled the truck to find Chuck battling furiously with the other man. Before the leader of the illustrious team could intervene the man sidestepped a blow by the radio-man and, drawing a knife, aimed a blow at Chuck's unprotected neck.

Blackhawk reached them in time to deflect the thrust. At the same moment Chuck whirled and chopped down his opponent with two smashing blows.

When Chuck had regained his breath Blackhawk said, "You might see if you can get the air base on the radio in the other truck. It won't be long before our kidnappers will be landing there—back where we started."

"Sure," Chuck said. "I'll bet those boys were surprised when they tried to pilot the X-RC-37 after the remote control radio from the base took over. They should have checked the 'R and C,' which in this case means radio-controlled."

"Just like all enemies of our country," Blackhawk said grimly, "they're finding that treachery boomerangs."

As usual, Will Bragg is laboring under a cloud, but for a while it looks as if being a weather prophet may be profitable for him.
